

Piracy-resistant data leasing system and method.

Abstract

The present invention discloses the data storage medium enabling subsequent alteration by a user or user's data rendering system in order to enforce the restrictive covenants of the data usage agreement. The present invention also discloses the data rendering system designed to work with said data storage medium. The present invention also discloses the piracy-resistant method to deliver data stored on a removable data storage medium.